On the occasion of Bahrain's glorious National Day, we extend our heartfelt congratulations and loyalty to the wise leadership, government, and the people of Bahrain. This momentous day, which marks the establishment of the kingdom of Bahrain and the anniversary of His Majesty the King's accession to the throne, serves as an inspiration for all of us to reaffirm our dedication to the national vision and continue striving for excellence in the healthcare sector, contributing to the Kingdom's sustainable development and prosperity.

It is also my pleasure to extend to all the female staff at Al Kindi Hospital my sincerest feelings of pride and appreciation on the occasion of Bahraini Women's Day. At Al Kindi Hospital, we see in every Bahraini woman a model of achievement and distinction that could not have been realized without the wise leadership of His Majesty King Hamad bin Isa Al Khalifa, and His Royal Highness Prince Salman bin Hamad Al Khalifa, the Crown Prince and Prime Minister, and the boundless support provided by the Supreme Council for Women, led by Her Royal Highness Princess Sabeeka bint Ibrahim Al Khalifa, may God protect them, which has cemented the position of women as an essential partner in the nation's construction and advancement.

A rare case of Eosinophilic Enteritis unravels at Al Kindi Hospital!

A 33-year-old male with a medical history of hypertension, hypothyroidism, and type 2 diabetes presented to Al Kindi Hospital with a three-week history of severe abdominal pain, nausea, vomiting, and diarrhea. The patient had previously been admitted to another hospital for seven days where an extensive workup, including a CT scan of the abdomen and pelvis with contrast, yielded no definitive diagnosis. He was subsequently discharged with his symptoms unresolved.

Upon admission to our hospital, a significant diagnostic clue was discovered in a complete blood count (CBC): marked eosinophilia, with an eosinophil count of 9,000 out of a total leukocyte count of 16,000. This finding was the key to a correct diagnosis, which was suspected to be Eosinophilic Enteritis.

This rare condition, with an estimated incidence of 6 in 100,000 people in the USA, is characterized by eosinophil infiltration into the layers of the gastrointestinal tract. The patient's symptoms were consistent with the disease's pathophysiology: the diarrhea was caused by infiltration of the mucosa, intestinal obstruction by infiltration of the muscularis layer, and ascites by infiltration of the serosa. The diagnosis was confirmed through a biopsy of the duodenum following an upper gastrointestinal endoscopy.

The patient was treated with the required medications, which led to dramatic improvement. He was discharged home and will require long term management as this is a chronic disease. This successful outcome was the result of a collaborative effort by our team, with the lead of Dr. Ahmed Elsebaaie and Dr. Ali Al Baqali.
